Waterfall Chrysanthemums

Festival October 15th--November 30th

WE ARE proud to announce to our many friends that this year's show of Waterfall Chrysanthemums is not only the largest, but the finest, one we have ever held. Included in their starry ranks will be found all of your old favorites, as well as many newer developments including "Pleiades", a large lavender-pink quilled sort, "Lingering Summer" in warm violet-maroon and "Autumn Mood", a fine semi-double quilled bronze. There are also delicate and deep pinks, lilac, soft and brilliant yellows, sunset, rich and flaming reds, as well as the ever beloved whites such as "Falling Snow" and "Waters of the McKenzie".

The picture shown above best illustrates this exquisite delicate-flowered type, which is the perfect foil for the large flowered ordinary varieties with their stiffly erect stems.

While they leave nothing to be desired for use in the patio and garden, they are particularly satisfactory and distinctive as a house plant. Placed on a mantle shelf, bracket or pedestal these dainty flowers make a gay contribution of a month or six weeks of bloom. This type was discovered growing wild in Korea, trailing over the rocks in a remote mountain section.

CULTURE

Preferably keep in a semi-shady location; cut back stems in February and, from the new growth, select two or more runners, according to age of plant, and keep the remaining shoots trimmed back. Then train and tie these leaders on bamboo stakes or wires, pointing North, and slanting up at an angle of 45°, so that sun strikes all parts equally. Disbud and pinch back the side shoots to one or two leaf joints to develop a bushy, close-branched side growth. About the end of September remove supports and let runners droop over side of pot, facing South to the sun. Plant in a mixture of good loam and leafmold, and during growing season (March-September) feed lightly with a commercial fertilizer (5-10-2). The resulting cascade of color will amply reward you.
